What's going on at Cross Keys High School in Dekalb?

Here are minute-by-minute updates on Tuesday's election from AJC reporters and photographers on the scene:

11:45 a.m.: At Cross Keys High School, volunteers passed out water bottles to a crowd of 100 voters lined up for hours outside the building.

Countless others left the line snaked around the building or never joined at all, as word spread the machines weren't working and the precinct quickly ran out of the 20 provisional ballots.

Jonathan Banes, the precinct manager, said he's tried repeatedly to troubleshoot the equipment but his PIN number won't work. He pleaded with DeKalb elections officials for technical assistance and more provisional ballots.
